

The Department of Philosophy presents...

a public talk with Dr. Jodi Halpern

Dr. Harry Lyman Hooker
Distinguished
Visiting Professor

Empathic Curiosity in a Divided World

Studying doctors and patients during emotionally charged conflicts suggests that empathic curiosity can be surprisingly effective and therapeutic. Investigating successful examples of post-war reconciliation further illuminates the value of empathic curiosity and how it can be practiced despite extreme polarization. These studies provide a pathway forward to addressing conflicts not only in our daily lives but in our highly divided societies.

Tuesday, April 4

3:30-5pm | JHE-264

Reception to follow at West
Room of University Club

For more information please contact:

philadm@mcmaster.ca

Jodi Halpern, MD, PhD

University Chair, Class of 1940 Endowment Professor of Bioethics and Medical Humanities

Co-founder and Co-Director, Berkeley Group for the Ethics and Regulation of Innovative Technologies

School of Public Health University of California, Berkeley

jodihalpern.com

HUMANITIES

McMaster
University 